AN EXAMPLE OF "ELEVENTH-HOUR" REPAIRS

Flare sent from the front frequently refers to the blowing up of trenches. This picture, borrowed from a photograph in "L'Illustration," shows a German trench after it has been blown up by a party of French soldiers.

QUEENSLAND'S ROLL OF HONOUR.

Casualties in the Dardanelles Fighting.

(With the exception of two of them, all the portraits in this and the following pages are from photographs supplied before the "Queenslander" by the "Victims" of the war.)

AN INTERESTING PHOTO.

This interesting snapshot was taken on board a transport. It is rather remarkable that the three officers on the left (Lieutenants Figg, Lumsden, Barrett, and Major Robertson) should have been killed, and the officer on the right (Lieutenant Jones) wounded.
